TRANSANAL IRRIGATION USING A CONE SYSTEM IN PATIENTS WITH LOWER MOTOR NEURONE SPINAL CORD INJURY

A fantastic evaluation by Dr Anton Emmanuel and the team illustrating how transanal irrigation is an appropriate treatment that can easily fit in to the pathway of bowel management for lower motor neurone spinal cord injured patients. The study endorsed that the Qufora IrriSedo Cone system is a safe and effective treatment option, demonstrating that key measures of faecal episodes and time spent toileting are reduced when adopting this as an intervention.

"A cone-based transanal irrigation (TAI) system may have an advantage over catheter based systems in terms of ease of setting up, procedure time and low likelihood of complications. The Qufora® IrriSedo Cone System comprises a tube connecting a suspended water bag via a simple valve to a hydrophylic-coated cone"

Conclusions: TAI with the Qufora IrriSedo Cone system is a safe and effective option for patients with bowel symptoms secondary to lower motor neurone spinal cord injury.

Key measures such as time spent toileting and faecal incontinence episodes are reduced by the intervention. To read the full evaluation click here.
